At Universitas Sriwijaya, the presence of a dynamic and independent students' union serves as a crucial pillar in nurturing a flourishing university community. Acknowledging and supporting such a union not only empowers students but also guarantees their voices are effectively heard and their needs met. This union plays an essential role in contributing valuable insights to university governance, acting as a vital link between the administrative body and the student body. This collaborative approach fosters a shared sense of responsibility in the decision-making processes, enhancing the overall university experience.

Universitas Sriwijaya identifies local stakeholders outside the university and involves them through various activities. Having well-defined written policies and procedures in place is essential for the identification and engagement of these external stakeholders. These policies serve as a roadmap for universities, enabling them to navigate interactions with local communities, businesses, and organizations. UNSRI also has several research centers to identify local stakeholders outside the university, such as Sriwijaya Law Center and Research Center of Sriwijaya Studies at Faculty of Social and Political Sciences
